

2021 PRELUDE RESIDENCIES FOR AUSTRALIAN COMPOSERS

Bundanon Trust and the Peggy Glanville-Hicks Composers House Trust are excited to announce the three Australian composers awarded the Prelude residencies for 2021: Aviva Endean, Matt Laing, and Dr Yitzhak Yedid.

Prelude is a national network of long-term residencies for Australian composers, housed in historic buildings and providing time and space for the creation of new work. For 2021 the three historic houses are located in Perth WA, Angaston SA, and Sydney NSW.

Prelude is based on the sentiment expressed by Peggy Glanville-Hicks in 1958 that, “It is apparent that leisure and silence are absolute prerequisites for composers if they are to engage fully the many forms of awareness involved in creative activity.”

Prelude is in its fifth year and has been managed by Bundanon Trust and the Peggy Glanville Hicks Composers House Trust. As of 2021, it will be solely managed by the “Peggy House” Trust, with enormous gratitude to Bundanon Trust for the excellent support it has provided since Prelude began.

In 2021 the programme builds on the established residencies at Peggy Glanville-Hicks House in Sydney, Gallop House in Perth and Collingrove Homestead in the beautiful Barossa Valley. The successful applicants are provided with sole occupancy of the houses as well as a stipend to cover living costs and travel.

Prelude is open to Australian composers in all musical genres and practices, including world music, jazz, new classical/art music, pop, film and rock. Residencies can be for research and development or for the creation of new work or as a time for reflection and renewal.

The Peggy Glanville-Hicks Composers' House in Paddington was the residence of leading composer Peggy Glanville-Hicks and was her gift to the future of Australian music upon her death in 1990. Peggy Glanville-Hicks provided for her home to be used as a Composers' House, with the hope "that the residency in the Trust house will create a haven and peace of mind which will enable the composer in residence to further his or her creative work. The result was the Peggy Glanville-Hicks Composers' Trust. Restored with the aid of the Arts NSW, the Australia Council for the Arts and sponsors, the House was opened on the 11 October, 1993 and is maintained the volunteer board of the Peggy Glanville-Hicks' Composers House. Over the years, 25 composers, performers and artists have sought a 'haven' within its walls. <https://www.pghcomposershouse.com/contact>
